Maharashtra bypolls: Sunetra Pawar heads to decisive win in Baramati, BJP's Akshay Kardile leads in Rahuri

Sunetra Pawar appealed to NCP workers and her supporters not to take out victory processions once the result is declared.

New Delhi.(Agency)

Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Sunetra Pawar headed towards a decisive win by a wide margin in the Baramati Assembly bypoll as vote counting was underway on Monday. She appealed to NCP workers and her supporters not to take out victory processions once the result is declared. She dedicated the trust placed in her by voters to the memory of her late husband, Ajit Pawar, and urged people to exercise restraint and uphold conduct that reflects his ideals.

The byelection, held on April 23, was necessitated following the death of the then Deputy CM and Nationalist Congress Party (NCP) head Ajit Pawar in a plane crash near Baramati airstrip in Pune district on January 28. His wife Sunetra Pawar, contesting her first assembly poll, is poised for a huge win riding a sympathy wave, and given her family's strong hold on the constituency. No major political party has fielded candidates against her. In the Rahuri Assembly seat by-election, BJP's Akshay Kardile was ahead of his rivals, as per trends available on the Election Commission's website.

The Rahuri seat in Ahilyanagar district became vacant after BJP MLA Shivaji Kardile's death in October last year.

His son and BJP nominee Akshay Kardile was leading over his nearest rival, NCP (SP) candidate Govind Mokate, by over 21,000 votes, as per the latest trends.

As per the latest trends on the Election Commission's website, Sunetra Pawar secured 61,917 votes, while only one of her 22 rivals managed to cross the 200-vote mark so far.

In a post on X, the deputy CM said, "As the results are being declared today, I dedicate the trust reposed in me through your votes to the sacred memory of respected Ajit Dada (as he was fondly called)." She said the moment was emotional for her supporters as it revived memories of the late leader.

"I humbly appeal to all party workers and supporters who deeply loved Dada not to take out victory processions or celebrate with gulas. Let us maintain restraint and conduct ourselves in a manner befitting his ideals," Sunetra Pawar said. She also thanked the electorate for the mandate and said it marked the beginning of a new phase for the constituency.

"I sincerely thank the people of Baramati for giving me the opportunity to realise Dada's vision. This is not the end, but just the beginning - of determination, struggle, and a new Baramati," she added.

BJP's Assam Fortress: Can Congress Exploit Anti-Incumbency In Key Seats?

Assam Assembly Election Results 2026: Polling in Assam was conducted in a single phase on April 9. A turnout of 85.96 per cent was recorded among the more than 2.50 crore registered voters.

New Delhi .(Agency)

The battle for Assam reaches its conclusion on Monday as votes are counted in the state assembly election, deciding whether the BJP-led NDA secures a third consecutive term in power or the Congress-led opposition manages to mount a challenge after an intense campaign. Electronic Voting Machines (EVM) across 126 assembly constituencies will be opened at 40 counting centres spread over all 35 districts of the state. Among the 722 candidates in the fray, 59 are women.

Nagaon district will have three separate counting centres, while Kokrajhar, Tinsukia and Jorhat will each have two. Twenty-five companies of the Central Armed Police Forces (CAPF) have been deployed to secure the counting centres and the strongrooms where the EVMs are stored. Authorities will additionally deploy 800 unarmed police personnel to transport the EVMs from the strongrooms to the counting halls.

Chief Electoral Officer Anurag Goel stated that two more CAPF companies will remain on static duty. Ninety-three companies of state armed police are already positioned in the districts. Eighty-five Assault Groups have also been mobilised to handle any untoward incidents on counting day.

How Parties Contested

Polling in Assam was conducted in a single phase on April 9. A turnout of 85.96 per cent was recorded among the more than 2.50 crore registered voters. The Congress fielded the largest number of candidates with 99, followed by the BJP with 90. The AIUDF contested 30 seats, while NDA allies Asom Gana Parishad (AGP) put up 26 and Bodo Peoples' Front (BPF) 11. In the opposition alliance, Rajjor Dal contested 13 seats, Assam Jatiya Parishad 10, CPI(M) three and All Party Hill Leaders Conference two.

The Aam Aadmi Party and United People's Party Liberal each contested 18 seats, the TMC 22, and the JMM 16. There are also 258 independent candidates.

Thalapathy Vijay to Chief Minister Vijay? TVK delivers Tamil Nadu blockbuster

While the counting of votes is still underway, trends suggest that Vijay's TVK is leading in 108 seats while the ruling DMK is ahead in just 52 seats.

Chennai.(Agency)

In a stunning political upset that has redrawn Tamil Nadu's power map, actor-turned-politician Vijay has propelled his party, Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK), to emerge as the single largest force in the state. What began as a fan-driven movement has now translated into a sweeping electoral mandate, dismantling the long-standing dominance of the DMK and AIADMK.

Riding on a wave of youth support, anti-incumbency sentiment, and a crafted grassroots campaign, Vijay has delivered a blockbuster performance that few predicted at this scale. The result signals not just a victory, but a decisive shift in Tamil Nadu's political narrative.

WHAT THE TRENDS SUGGEST

While vote counting is still underway, early trends show Vijay's TVK leading in 108 seats, while the ruling DMK is ahead in just 52. The AIADMK has retained much of its rural base and is emerging as the second-largest party, leading in 73 seats. The TVK has swept the Chennai region, leading in 31 of the 37 seats. It is also ahead in 49 of 65 urban constituencies, gains that appear to have come largely at the expense of the DMK, traditionally dominant in urban Tamil Nadu.

The party has also emerged as the largest force in southern Tamil Nadu, leading in 27 of the 58 seats. The AIADMK continues to hold its rural base, leading in 49 of 116 rural seats. However, the TVK has made significant inroads here as well, leading in 33 seats.

The Dark Empire of the 'Traitors' of Jainism!

Honeytrap Rackets, Extortion Games, and an Army of Fake Journalists: Have Insiders Taken a Contract to Destroy the Jain Faith?

Pawan Makan (Group Editor)

Surat/Mumbai: The time is officially up for the 'Vibhishans' (traitors) who have been poisoning the roots of the Jain community. While our revered Gachhadhipatis (spiritual leaders) are hoisting the flag of our faith on the global stage, a few 'parasites' hiding within the community are busy hollowing it out from the inside. Today, Mahanagar Metro is set to dismantle the disgusting syndicate that has turned religion into a hub for blackmail and extortion.

Jagat Parekh: A 'Criminal' Kicked Out of the Sangh Now Claims to be a Defender of the Faith?

The true face of Jagat Parekh, the self-proclaimed leader of the Sangh, has finally been exposed. The man who was thrown out of the Jain Sangh like a fly out of milk due to his despicable actions is now daring to sling mud at the character of our saints.

Keep in Mind: This is the same Jagat Parekh who was put behind bars by the Ahmedabad Crime Branch.

* The Big Question: How can someone with a long list of criminal cases against him preach morality to the society?

The Trio of Sinners: Kalpesh, Vikram, and Fake Journalist Hardik Hudiya

An entire 'gang' is operating behind this conspiracy. People like Kalpesh Singhvi and Vikram Bafna sit behind the scenes weaving malicious plots, using so-called journalists like Hardik Hudiya as their pawns. This is not journalism; it is daylight robbery in the name of the press.

Their modus operandi involves laying fake 'honeytrap' snares against saints, spreading them on social media, and terrorizing the community. Their motive is not the protection of religion, but pure extortion and an insatiable hunger for dominance.

Selling Out the Faith for Money: The Height of Sabotage

Today, the Jain community is a minority. We may be small in numbers, but our true strength lies in our unity and our saints. To break this very strength, these 'money-hungry' individuals have sold out their own people. Defaming any saint for a few rupees, creating fake videos, and playing dirty politics—these acts are nothing short of a grave sin.

> WARNING:

> Those sitting in glass houses and throwing stones at our Gachhadhipatis have forgotten that Mahanagar Metro now has their entire dossier. To those filling their pockets by defaming the Jain faith: your countdown has begun!

Coming Up Next: The Big Explosion!

Mahanagar Metro will soon release the names of the 'white-collar' individuals who are funding this gang. We will make public the audio recordings and hard evidence that will expose the true faces of these so-called protectors to the masses.

Core Message:

"Recognize these wolves doing business under the guise of religion. If we remain silent today, future generations will never forgive us. Long live Jain Unity, Long live the Jain Faith!"

Editor's Note: This report is entirely based on facts and evidence. No amount of hollow threats or intimidation can stop us from writing the truth.

Old guard uneasy as Uddhav moves to push Sena next gen

Mumbai.(Agency)

Uddhav Thackeray's decision not to contest the election for the legislative council is being interpreted as a sign of change of guard in the Shiv Sena (UBT). Party insiders say Uddhav is preparing the ground for handing over the party reins to son Aditya Thackeray.

When Uddhav became the Maharashtra chief minister in 2019, he got himself elected as a member of the legislative council, while Aditya was elected to the assembly. The father-son duo had both Houses covered then. Aditya continues to be an MLA from Mumbai's Worli constituency. Now, with the Shiv Sena (UBT) nominating Ambadas Danave as its candidate for MLC polls for the lone seat that the Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) can win, Aditya's stock is set to rise in the party. Observers say, with Aditya's ascent, Uddhav has made a decision to groom the next generation of leadership and bring fresh faces in the party.

Sources say that Aditya's involvement in party's decision-making has already increased, even when it is not being taken kindly by its old guard. However, Aditya seems undeterred and is planning to make largescale changes for the next Lok Sabha and assembly elections. "When Shiv Sena (UBT) leader Sanjay Raut unilaterally announced Sharad Pawar's name as the MVA candidate for the Rajya Sabha, Aditya Thackeray was in favour of re-sending MP Priyanka Chaturvedi to the House.

This time, the Shiv Sena, by choosing Danave, has dropped its claim over the Rajya Sabha seat that could have seen the re-nomination of Raut for the Rajya Sabha. Now, it will be tough for Raut to get elected to the Rajya Sabha. In short, Aditya chose to encourage and promote the state-level leadership of Danave over Raut," said a person who is privy to this development.

Sources said that Aditya plans to build his own team of young leaders from different parts of Maharashtra. "In the coming day, we will see more changes that will help Aditya tighten his

Man dies by suicide at Gurgaon Sector 65 mall

Gurgaon.(Agency)

A 45-year-old man died allegedly by suicide at M3M Avenue 65 mall in Sector 65 on Saturday evening, with police suspecting a marital discord may have led to the extreme step. The deceased, Nishant, was a resident of Emaar Emerald Hills in Sector 65. Police said he had recently returned to India from the United States, where he was employed. He was staying with his parents and sister.

The incident took place around 7.30pm on May 2, when Sector 65 police received information. A team reached the spot and found the man with critical injuries. He was taken to a hospital where he was declared dead, an officer said. The body was sent for autopsy at a govt hospital and later handed over to the family. Police have initiated inquest proceedings and are recording statements of family members to ascertain the circumstances leading to the incident.

During preliminary inquiry, investigators found that Nishant had been married for around 12 years and both he and his wife were working abroad. "He was under mental stress due to the marital dispute," an officer said.

Gunmen open fire outside house, constable injured

Gurgaon.(Agency)

A police constable was injured after two assailants opened fire outside a house in Sector 45 late on Saturday night.

The attack occurred outside the residence of Saurabh, a former associate of singer Rahul Fazilpuria. Constable Kulbir, deployed there on security duty, suffered bullet grazes to his hand and leg. The assailants fled after the attack. Kulbir was hospitalised and is stated to be out of danger.

Police said the attack stemmed from a long-running money dispute between Saurabh and Deepak Nandal, named as the main accused. Nandal had previously issued threats against Saurabh, following which the latter was accorded police security in Feb. Investigators said Saturday's attack was carried out at Nandal's behest.

An FIR was registered on Kulbir's complaint under sections related to attempt to murder and other relevant provisions. Multiple crime branch teams have been deployed to trace the assailants, while a parallel probe is underway into a social media post claiming responsibility for the attack.

The post claimed the firing was orchestrated by the Deepak Nandal gang, mentioned another name — Satta Naushera — and carried a threat warning that "bullets will reach everyone's homes." Police said the authenticity of the post is being verified.

The attack has revived scrutiny of a broader web of crime linked to Fazilpuria. On July 14 last year, unidentified assailants in a white Tata Punch fired at Fazilpuria's vehicle on SPR Road. He escaped unhurt. A breakthrough came on October 26 when the crime branch arrested Sunil Sardhanja, 39, from Delhi airport. Sardhanja had fled to Central America via Dubai using a forged passport. Police said he allegedly supplied shooters and weapons in multiple cases, including the Fazilpuria attack, the murder of his associate Rohit Shokeen, and a firing at a builder's office in Sector 45. He faces 24 criminal cases and had previously jumped bail using forged documents.

15 e-buses on 4 routes, six-month trial to begin soon, to link airport with Greater Noida

Noida.(Agency)

Greater Noida Industrial Development Authority (GNIDA) will launch 15 electric buses on four routes connecting the city areas with Noida International Airport next month. The routes will link key locations such as Gaur Chowk, Surajpur, Pari Chowk and other prominent areas in Greater Noida. The service will initially run for six months at an estimated cost of Rs 1.8 crore, and will be extended depending on the ridership and demand.

GNIDA CEO Ravi Kumar NG said that the initiative is being driven by the need for an environment-friendly public transport system in view of the airport becoming operational. "There is a growing demand for sustainable urban mobility as the airport will soon start operations. We have decided to launch 15 electric buses, which will be funded by the Authority and operated by UP Roadways," he said.

As per the plan, the first route will connect Char Murti Chowk, also known as Gaur Chowk, to Noida International Airport in Jewar via Surajpur T-point and Pari Chowk. The second route will also link Gaur Chowk to the airport but will pass through other Greater Noida sectors, also covering the Govt Institute of Medical Sciences (GIMS).

The third route is proposed from Makoda roundabout to the airport via Knowledge Park and Sector P-7, while the fourth route will connect Sector 16 to the airport through Tilapta, Swam Nagri, Yatharth Hospital and Gautam Buddha University. Four buses will operate on each of the first three routes, while three buses will ply on the fourth route. Commercial operations are scheduled to begin at the Noida International Airport on June 15, marking the launch of a second civil aviation hub in the Delhi-NCR region. IndiGo is set to operate the inaugural flight, followed by services from Akasa Air and Air India Express in the initial phase. With around 45 days remaining before operations begin, efforts to strengthen ground connectivity to the airport have also gathered pace. Yamuna Authority plans to introduce five hydrogen-powered buses between Pari Chowk and the airport. UP Roadways will operate bus services at a frequency of every 30 minutes from Pari Chowk and hourly from Noida City Centre. Additionally, state-run buses will connect the airport to cities such as Dehradun, Haridwar, Gurgaon, Faridabad and Delhi's Kashmere Gate, Sarai Kale Khan, Anand Vihar and New Delhi railway station.

8-lane makeover for SPR stretch between Vatika Chowk & Ghata Chowk

Gurgaon.(Agency)

A 6-km stretch on Southern Peripheral Road (SPR), between Vatika Chowk and Ghata Chowk, will soon be widened into an eight-lane corridor by paving adjacent road shoulders, effectively adding a lane on either side. GMDA has allotted the work to an agency, officials said on Friday. GMDA has estimated the project cost at Rs 6.5 crore.

The six-lane Vatika-Ghata stretch is a key link connecting Golf Course Road, Sohna Road, Gurgaon-Faridabad Road, NH8 and Dwarka Expressway, and witnesses heavy footfall due to rapid residential and commercial development along the corridor.

Although the main carriageway on this stretch was repaired in 2024, the shoulders remained unpaved. During dry weather, loose soil along the edges adds to dust pollution, while during the monsoon, the stretch turns muddy and waterlogged.

Some commuters using these lanes to cut traffic have only added to the risk of accidents due to uneven surfaces and sudden merging near junctions. By converting these shoulders into properly paved lanes, GMDA aims for more lane discipline, reducing unsafe overtaking and improving overall driving conditions. The project is officially slated for completion by the end of the year, but officials said efforts are being made to complete the work before the timeline. "The work has been allotted and will start soon. We will be adding lanes by paving the shoulder to utilise the available road width more efficiently," a GMDA official said.

Commuters have welcomed the move, saying that the step was much needed. However, some residents pointed out that comprehensive improvements, including proper drainage systems, greenbelt development and pedestrian infrastructure, should also be undertaken.

"It is better late than never. Unpaved roads are major contributors to dust pollution. It's good that civic authorities are finally doing something about it. However, they should also focus on addressing other issues such as drainage and greenbelt along the stretch," Amitansh Verma, a resident of Sector Sushant Lok 3, said.

Sorkha sports ground up for revamp, running track to be added

Noida.(Agency)

Plans to upgrade the existing sports ground at Sorkha village with a dedicated running track have been approved by the sub-divisional magistrate (SDM) Anuj Nehra, following a meeting of the authorities and sports enthusiasts of the village.

While there will be no change to the land, which is a pastureland, the makeshift sports facility will be upgraded in coordination with the Noida Authority for better use by athletes and wrestlers of the village. A copy of the SDM's letter is with TOI.

Wrestlers from Sorkha village, near Sector 115, rose to prominence between 2001 and 2014 when dozens from the village went on to play at the national-level championship. But over the years, its popularity dwindled too due to a lack of opportunities and investments. The initiative aims to foster local sporting talent and fulfil the villagers' longstanding demand. The village has waited for over two years for improved sports facilities. This was reported earlier by on April 14.

The proposed sports complex will occupy approximately 4 acres of public land. This facility is expected to feature not only improved training amenities but also a running track specifically designed for girls, promoting inclusivity in sports.

Villagers welcomed the move. "By personally inspecting the ground and listening to our concerns, the SDM has secured the future of the local children. This sports ground is destined to become a 'nursery of dreams' for our athletes," said Indrajit Pehalwan, a resident of Sorkha.

Some residents said the aim was also to safeguard public land for future generations from land grabbers. "We have stressed the need for a boundary wall around the sports ground, and a modern hall with a mat-covered floor at the wrestling arena (the akhada) to protect the training facilities for our wrestlers.

Haryana begins sacred grove identification drive

Gurgaon.(Agency)

Haryana has launched a first-of-its-kind exercise to identify and map sacred groves across the state — culturally protected biodiversity zones where faith, tradition and ecology intersect.

In south Haryana, forest officials have shortlisted four sites in Gurgaon district — Bhondsi near the Bhuvaneshwari temple, Gairatpur Bas, Kasan and Ghamroj. In Faridabad, Mangar Bani and the Badkhal temple zone are also under consideration. The exercise aims to recognise vegetation patches historically preserved by local communities through deity worship, customary laws and spiritual belief systems, often outside formal governance frameworks, and to create a structure for their long-term ecological protection.

"As announced in the Haryana Budget 2026-27, the identification of sacred groves is currently underway," said Subhash Yadav, chief conservator of forests (south Haryana).

According to the forest department's criteria, a sacred grove is typically associated with local deities, ancestral spirits or worship practices; retains active religious or ritual significance; is protected by the community for cultural or spiritual reasons; supports biodiversity with relatively low disturbance; and operates under customary protection systems. Additional considerations include the presence of rare or endemic species, gram sabha or panchayat support and a minimum area of around 2.5 acres.

Officials note that many such sites exist across Haryana but have never been systematically mapped or formally recognised despite their ecological and social value.

The shortlisted villages are significant due to their location in and around the Aravali belt, where biodiversity-rich landscapes face mounting pressure from urbanisation, infrastructure expansion and ecological fragmentation. Identifying sacred groves here could help preserve native vegetation patches, shrine forests and community-protected commons that serve as critical biodiversity refuges.

Man kills wife, 4 children over loan dispute, attempts suicide

Gurgaon.(Agency)

A dispute over a loan escalated into a case of domestic violence in Gurgaon's Wazirpur, where a 35-year-old man allegedly killed his wife and four children before attempting suicide on Saturday night, sources said.

Mohammad Nazim, originally from Moradabad in Uttar Pradesh, had been under financial strain after taking a loan, which triggered frequent arguments with his wife, 31-year-old Nazma. Investigators said a fresh dispute broke out between the couple on Saturday, after which Nazim allegedly poisoned all five and attempted to take his own life. The victims — Nazma and the couple's four children, Iqra (13), Shifa (11), Aayan (7), and Khadija Noor (6) — were found lying on the floor, frothing at the mouths. They also bore strangulation marks. Nazim was found nearby with slit wounds on his throat and wrists, lying in a pool of blood. A blood-stained knife was recovered from the scene. The incident came to light when Nazim's younger brother, Zeeshan, who often visited for dinner, arrived and found the bodies. He alerted their third brother, Arif, who called an ambulance. All six were rushed to hospital. "My sister-in-law and the children were immobile. My brother was bleeding," Zeeshan told.

Police received a call around 9.30pm, following which the crime and forensics teams, along with senior officers, reached the spot. A case of murder has been registered at the Sector 10A police station on a complaint by the house owner.

Nazim, currently hospitalised and out of danger, is in police custody and will be formally arrested and interrogated once his condition stabilises. Nazim ran a salon in the Garhi Harsaru area. The couple had been married for 14 years and lived in the city for nine years, moving.

SC issues notices to multiple agencies on Yamuna pollution

Noida.(Agency)

A Supreme Court division bench has issued notices to Nagar Palika Parishad Khoda Mankanpur, Municipal Corporation of Delhi, Delhi Public Works Department, Delhi govt, the River Rejuvenation Committee for Delhi and Uttar Pradesh, and Delhi's Irrigation and Flood Control Department after obtaining from Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB) a list of authorities responsible for checking pollution in the Yamuna.

The apex court was hearing civil applications filed by Noida and the Delhi Jal Board, which have challenged the environmental compensation imposed on them by National Green Tribunal in 2022. The hearing took place on April 29. The bench also directed amicus curiae K Parameshwar to suggest a nodal authority to coordinate different departments and agencies by the next date of hearing on May 13.

The tribunal had imposed an environmental compensation of Rs 150 crore on both agencies for failing to check sewage flow into the Kondli irrigation canal, which eventually drains into the Yamuna and contributes to pollution.

During the previous hearing on March 19, the bench of justices Manoj Mishra and Manmohan observed that rivers are national assets and must be protected. It had directed CPCB to identify authorities that could be involved in preparing a comprehensive plan to address the issue. The pollution watchdog subsequently submitted a list of such agencies.

The bench noted that several of these agencies are already represented in court and issued notices to the remaining ones. On the suggestion of additional solicitor general SV Raju, it also decided to include the Delhi irrigation department.

Observing that multiple agencies are involved, the court underlined the need for better coordination to prevent sewage and industrial effluents from entering the Yamuna. It asked the amicus curiae to propose a nodal agency for this purpose.

Meanwhile, Devesh Mishra, joint secretary in the UP urban development department, filed an affidavit stating that encroachments on land earmarked for a sewage treatment plant in Khoda Mankanpur have been cleared and construction has begun.

Responding to the court's concern on whether the proposed 66 MLD sewage treatment plant, planned in 2024, would meet future requirements if completed by 2028, Mishra said a study by IIT Delhi found that the plant would be adequate to meet demand until 2041.

Eco-friendly night stays to boost Vizag tourism

VISAKHAPATNAM. (Agency)

Soon, people of Visakhapatnam and tourists visiting the city may no longer have to travel to far-flung Agency areas to experience forests and nature trails, with the Forest Department preparing to launch night-stay eco-tourism activities at the Kambalakonda Wildlife Sanctuary, bringing a wilderness experience within the city limits.

Located amidst the city and nestled within the Eastern Ghats, Kambalakonda Wildlife Sanctuary is being upgraded under the Government of India's Nagar Van Yojana. Spread across nearly 71 square kilometres, the sanctuary is emerging as a key eco-tourism destination, offering a rare combination of biodiversity conservation and nature-based recreation in close proximity to the city.

Developed at a cost of Rs 2 crore, the Kambalakonda Nagaravanam is already attracting over 200 visitors daily and up to 500 on weekends. To manage the site, the Forest Department has engaged 25 members from local tribal communities, integrating livelihood generation with conservation efforts.

Visakhapatnam Range Conservator of Forests

Mohammad Diwan Mydeen said, "Visitors will soon be able to book small eco-friendly huts for overnight stays based on available packages and explore the sanctuary through trekking routes of 3 km, 5 km and 7 km, designed to cater to different age groups and fitness levels. Shorter trails are expected to appeal to families and casual visitors, while the longer stretches will offer a more immersive trekking experience for adventure enthusiasts."

Mafia Vijay, the Merchant of 'Death', and the Ankleshwar Police Functioning as His Kept Mistress!

The 'Dirty' Alliance of PI Chavda and the LCB; The Chief Minister's Prestige Auctioned in the Crime Bazaar Set Up in Chota Bazaar!

Mahanagar Metro Beuro

Ankleshwar: Shame on you, Bharuch Police! If the blood of the law runs in your veins, drown yourselves in shame, because the law's funeral procession is being taken out on the streets of Ankleshwar. Those we considered our protectors have become predators, playing in the lap of the mafia. Today, Mahanagar Metro is going to strip naked that 'Khaki' which, for a few rupees, has mortgaged the pride of its uniform and the public's trust at the feet of Mafia 'Vijay'.

Chota Bazaar: The Pilgrimage Site for Police's 'Hafta'!

Chota Bazaar, situated near the railway station, is no longer a market but has become a 'market of sins'. Here, the dark empire of Mafia Vijay is screaming that prohibition in Gujarat exists only on paper. Thousands of homes are being destroyed in the name of gambling dens, Worli Matka, and 'Aasra', but PI Chavda is blindfolded by Gandhi's notes. The stench of liquor coming from the Tar Fadiya area is actually the rot of police corruption.

Uniformed Traitors: The 'Murderous' Police Sacrificing Informers!

Neither the law nor God will forgive the sin committed by the Ankleshwar Police. When a brave citizen risks his life to report these illegal dens, instead of raiding them, the LCB and local police hand over the citizen's number directly to Mafia Vijay as a 'contract' (Supari). Listen carefully, officers! If even a scratch comes to that informant, every drop of his blood will fall on your uniform. You are no longer police; you have become 'paid agents' of criminals.

PI Chavda and LCB PI Vala: Fear of Questions or a Confession of Guilt?

When Mahanagar Metro asked piercing questions to these men in uniform, the officers were left dumbfounded. Lacking the courage to answer, they blocked our numbers like cowards.

Mr. Chavda! Blocking numbers won't suppress the truth. Are you waiting for the day when piles of corpses line the streets of Ankleshwar after consuming spurious liquor?

* Do you want another 'Lathakand' (hooch tragedy) to happen, bringing global disgrace to the Gujarat Government?

'Sleeper Cells' Against Power: Are These Police Officers Rebels?

This is not mere corruption; it is an open rebellion against the state government.

1. Conspiracy to Topple the Government: Have these tainted officers taken a 'contract' in collusion with the opposition to defame the government?

2. The Silence of SP Bharuch: Captain of Bharuch, a 'parallel government' is running right under your nose. Is your intelligence sleeping, or are hands being washed from top to bottom in this flowing Ganges of corruption?

3. Failure of the SMC: Information was given to the State Monitoring Cell, but has Vijay's black money silenced the arguments in Gandhinagar too?

Honorable Chief Minister, Crack the Whip Now!

Honorable Chief Minister and Home Minister of Gujarat, your prohibition policy is being crushed under the boots of these officers. These officers salute not the orders of the Chief Minister, but the signals of Mafia Vijay. The public is asking—is Ankleshwar a police station or the mafia's headquarters?

Final Warning!

Mahanagar Metro is not going to stop. Our pen is now spewing acid. We will not rest until this citadel of sin in Chota Bazaar is demolished and the uniforms of corrupt officers are stripped away.

The public of Ankleshwar has awakened; there is no saving these wolves now!

Tribal Man Beaten With Hockey Stick In Madhya Pradesh, Case Filed

A Baiga tribal man was beaten by security at Nigahi Coal Plant in Madhya Pradesh in a viral video.

Singrauli. (Agency)

A disturbing video from Madhya Pradesh's Singrauli district has triggered outrage after it showed a tribal man from the Baiga community being mercilessly beaten with a hockey stick inside the premises of the Nigahi Coal Handling Plant, operated by Northern Coalfields Limited. The victim has been identified as Anne Lal Baiga. In the video, which has now gone viral on social media, he is seen lying helpless on the ground, pleading for mercy as the accused allegedly continues to assault him. The security in charge, identified as MD Singh, is allegedly seen abusing and beating him with a hockey stick while bystanders watch. The most chilling part of the video is not just the assault but also the voices around it. As the tribal man keeps pleading, "I beg of you, please don't hit me," people standing nearby are allegedly heard encouraging the attacker, saying,

"Spare his head, but break everything else." The incident reportedly took place around a month ago near the Nigahi Coal Handling Plant area. According to the victim's statement to police, he had gone into the forest with his wife to collect firewood when security personnel posted in the area allegedly stopped him. They reportedly suspected him of stealing scrap material and then assaulted him in the name of interrogation. The video shows the man being beaten in front of his wife. He collapses to the ground, but the assault continues. His repeated pleas fail to stop the violence. The incident has sparked anger not only because of the brutality, but also because the victim belongs to the Baiga community, a vulnerable tribal group.

After the video surfaced, the Nawanagar Police Station took cognisance of the matter and registered a case against three named individuals, including the security in-charge. Police said two accused have been taken into custody and are being interrogated. City Superintendent of Police Umesh Prajapati said the victim had been identified as Annelal Baiga and that the video appeared to be around one month old.

According to him, the victim told police that he had gone to the forest to collect firewood when security personnel suspected him of scrap theft and assaulted him.

"Based on the video, a case has been registered against three named individuals. Two accused have been taken into custody and are being interrogated. Action is being taken under the SC/ST Act," the CSP said. The incident has now taken a political turn. On Sunday, Minister of State for Panchayat and Rural Development Radha Singh visited the victim's home in the Baiga settlement. She met Anne Lal Baiga's family, heard their account of the incident and assured them of support.

The righteous butcher, a tale that has inspired countless generations

The story begins with a Brahmin named Kaushika, who was deeply immersed in his studies and spiritual practices. One day, while meditating under a tree, he was disturbed by a crane's droppings. In a fit of anger, Kaushika glared at the bird, and due to the power of his penance, the crane was reduced to ashes. Though he did not act intentionally, Kaushika realised that his anger had caused harm to an innocent creature; he was filled with remorse. Later, Kaushika visited a nearby village, where he approached a house to ask for alms. A woman inside the house asked him to wait while she attended to her husband. Kaushika grew impatient and angry by the delay, but was taken aback when the woman, without seeing him, said that she was not like the crane, meaning she wouldn't be harmed by his anger. Astonished by her knowledge of what had happened earlier, Kaushika realised that she possessed spiritual wisdom far beyond his own. Curious, Kaushika asked her about the source of her wisdom. The woman, recognising Kaushika's spiritual pride, advised him to visit Dharmavyadha, a butcher in the city of Mithila, to learn the true meaning of dharma.

Kaushika, intrigued and somewhat perplexed, made his way to Mithila. Upon arriving, he was surprised to find Dharmavyadha, a simple man, engaged in his daily work of butchering and selling meat. The sight was unsettling for Kaushika, who began to doubt that a person of a fulfilling life engaged in such a profession could teach him anything about dharma.

However, as soon as Dharmavyadha saw Kaushika, he welcomed him warmly and said that he knew the Brahmin had been sent by the virtuous woman. Kaushika was amazed when Dharmavyadha narrated the entire sequence of events that had led him to come to Mithila, even though they had never met before. Dharmavyadha then explained the essence of dharma to Kaushika. He said that true righteousness is not about one's external actions or profession, but lies in performing one's duties with sincerity, honesty, and without attachment. Dharmavyadha explained that he was born into a family of butchers, and by performing his duty with the utmost dedication, he was upholding his dharma.

He also emphasised the importance of caring for one's family and fulfilling social responsibilities. Dharmavyadha took Kaushika to his home, where he lived with his parents, wife, and children. He explained that serving and caring for his ageing parents was his highest dharma, and he did so with great love and reverence. This, combined with his honest livelihood, made his life righteous.

Dharmavyadha's teachings profoundly impacted Kaushika, who realised that spiritual wisdom and righteousness were not limited to those who engaged in ascetic practices or religious rituals. Instead, dharma could be found in the faithful execution of one's duties in everyday life, regardless of occupation or social status. The tale of Kaushika and Dharmavyadha thus teaches us that every profession has its own dignity when performed with the right attitude and adherence to ethical principles.

The tale underscores the value of performing one's duty with determination and perseverance, devotion and integrity, and serves as a powerful reminder that true dharma lies in actions and intentions, not in external appearances.

This story has inspired countless generations to understand that righteousness and spiritual fulfilment are accessible to all, as long as one remains committed to one's duties with a pure heart and unwavering determination.

THE GREAT GAME: If the BJP wins Bengal, it will have proven its determination to take the state that has resisted its charms

FROM Punjab to Bengal, a certain inflammation is evident in the politics of two states on both ends of the country. In Punjab, the ruling Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) hoped to use May Day not as a distress signal (origin, the French phrase, "m'aider," to help), but to show that despite the defections in its ranks, the party stands united. Except, the special Assembly session called to celebrate workers' rights on May Day was overshadowed by a political slanging match that caused the House to be briefly adjourned and allowed the Opposition to accuse the ruling party of turning water into wine. How will this episode roil the already-muddying waters of Punjab politics? In one fell blow, the BJP has acquired seven new MPs, as AAP's Rajya Sabha faction broke away to join the BJP last week. Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann will meet the President soon to say the split is a violation of the anti-defection law. Still, the badly shaken party is evaluating its strengths and weaknesses these days.

Even if none of the newly installed BJP seven are mass leaders — in fact, the perception that they quit AAP to join BJP either under fear or favour is likely to go in AAP's favour — the fact remains that the BJP has thrown the first punch. The bout has begun. It will end when Punjab votes in the Assembly elections less than ten months from now. On the other end of the country, 48 hours from now, Bengal and the rest of the country will know if the wind has turned. Most exit polls have already awarded the state to the BJP. But something else is happening on the soil of Bengal. For the first time in years, India's foremost social science institution devoted to the study of democracy, the Centre for the Study of Developing Societies (CSDS) and its research arm, Lokniti, did not conduct any poll surveys in this round of Assembly elections. Well-known psephologist, Pradeep Gupta of Axis My India, refused to give seat projections for Bengal — although he gave projections for all other states that went to the polls — saying that 70 per cent of voters in the state refused to speak to his polling surveyors. And C-Voter polling agency's head, Yashwant Deshmukh, while refusing to give seat projections, said that if Mamata Banerjee's Trinamool Congress was able to hold on to five key districts in and around Kolkata — Kolkata, Howrah, 24 North Parganas, 24 South Parganas and Nadia, because these account for 108 seats in the House of 294 seats — then she could still be chief minister. Indeed, if the BJP wins Bengal, it will have proven its determination to take the only state that has resisted its charms — via saam, daam, dand, bhed and SIR. The BJP would have certainly added to Chanakya's famous treatise that speaks of the four methods that any smart ruler uses to curb his flock — manipulation, bribery, punishment and treachery — by imposing the Special Intensive Revision of rolls in Bengal. This meant that apart from the 27 lakh deletions of voters under the "logical discrepancy" clause, several thousand people simply ran out of time because they didn't have their papers in order. Now every political leader's DNA — except, perhaps, Rahul Gandhi who was wandering in the forests of the Great Nicobar Island or admiring the rain-shot hillsides of Dharamsala around the April 29 do-or-die Bengal vote — has the first four determinations ingrained in him. AAP's Manish Sisodia blurted them out last August when he said his party would not be averse to using them ("saam, daam, dand, bhed, sach, jhooth, sawaal, jawaab, ladai jhagra") in the fight for Punjab. Punjab BJP's Sunil Jakhar shot off a complaint to the Election Commission on Sisodia's comment at the time — but both leaders were certainly entitled to say what they did, their remarks well within the lakshman rekha of everyday politics. In Bengal, it was the addition of SIR — not a bad exercise in theory — to the electoral process, especially when time was running short and all kinds of silly mistakes with awful consequences were being made by the human hand in the attempt to digitise the state, that transformed the exercise into one of callous cruelty. Be that as it may. The die is cast. The ballot boxes are shut. Three days after they were, on May Day, the announcement of hiking the price of a commercial gas cylinder by Rs 993 was made. Back here in Punjab, AAP will certainly need to stay the course if it has to fight off the Opposition. For the moment, it has the upper hand. The Congress remains a divided house — the qualities of its many leaders hardly add up to being more than the sum of their parts.

After the leadership training session by Rahul in Dharamsala, as my colleague Rajmeet Singh reports, its leaders were told to organise padyatras focusing on law and order in September. Moreover, a new evaluation system mandates office-bearers to upload photos and reports of their activities. Under Nehru's great-grandson, the transformation of the grand old party into an NGO is all too apparent to see.

As for the BJP, while it smells the weakness in AAP's Punjab, it still lacks the wherewithal to move in for the kill. Or at least that's exactly what Bengal thought about the BJP until now. Whether or not the state succumbs to the charms of PM Modi's party, fact is, it has been changed forever by the party's push in this state. All eyes now on May 4.

Price politics: Deferred LPG pricing returns fast

Price decisions, while driven by global pressures, may also be calibrated around electoral cycles

THE Rs 993 increase in commercial LPG prices, pushing the 19-kg cylinder beyond Rs 3,000, is striking as much for its timing as for its scale. Announced just days after Assembly elections concluded in four states, the move is bound to invite scrutiny. It suggests that price decisions, while driven by global pressures, may also be calibrated around electoral cycles. The hike itself was neither abrupt nor unexpected. Crude oil prices have climbed sharply in recent weeks, crossing the $100-per-barrel mark amid escalating tensions in West Asia. Supply uncertainties and market volatility had already made a price correction inevitable. In that sense, the increase was anticipated; only its timing raises questions. The choice of timing — and of the segment — tells its own story. Domestic LPG prices remain untouched, sparing households a direct burden. Commercial users, however, face a sharp escalation.

This distinction shifts the impact away from voters and onto businesses — restaurants, eateries and small vendors — who are more likely to absorb or pass on the costs. The effect will surface gradually in the form of higher food prices rather than immediate public discontent. For now, households have been shielded, but this respite may not last. If global crude prices remain elevated, pressure will inevitably build for a revision in domestic LPG and piped natural gas (PNG) tariffs as well. Such increases, if they come, are likely to be staggered and calibrated. But the burden would only have been deferred, not avoided. When expected economic adjustments follow so closely on the heels of elections, it creates the impression that decisions are being timed as much by political convenience as by market logic. India's energy vulnerability is real, and periodic corrections are unavoidable. But when timing invites doubt, credibility becomes collateral.

From political theatrics in Punjab to SIR in Bengal

Even as the Rajya Sabha was conceived by the framers as the chamber of sober second thought, it now risks becoming the chamber of arithmetical absorption

Most exit polls have already awarded West Bengal to the BJP. If the BJP wins Bengal, it will have proven its determination to take the state that has resisted its charms via saam, daam, dand, bhed and SIR, writes Editor-in-Chief Jyoti Malhotra in her weekly column The Great Game article Saam, daam, dand, bhed, SIR. In Bengal, the die is cast; in Punjab, AAP will certainly need to stay the course if it has to fight off the Opposition. The fact remains that the BJP has thrown the first punch; the bout has begun. It will end when Punjab votes in the Assembly elections less than ten months from now. Coming back to SIR, at the centre of the SIR controversy lies a simple but uncomfortable question: When the Constitution guarantees the right to be registered as a voter, can a process, however well-intentioned, end up undermining that right, questions former Chief Election Commissioner of India, writes former Chief Election Commissioner of India SY Quraishi in his Edit article Bengal SIR left many voters behind. The law, through Section 21(3) of the Representation of the People Act, 1950, permits revision of electoral rolls, whether intensive or summary. But it does not license exclusion as a by-product of administrative zeal. The perception of exclusion, when tied to something as fundamental as the right to vote, is itself a democratic injury, he writes. In moments of potential disenfranchisement at scale, the Court has often acted as a protective umbrella. In the SIR case, however, that umbrella appeared hesitant to open fully, he writes. Meanwhile, the announcement by Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) MP Raghav Chadha that he and six of his Rajya Sabha colleagues had "merged" with the BJP was a clever piece of political theatre. By invoking paragraph 4 of the Tenth Schedule, the seceding members sought to dress up what was plainly a defection in the constitutional vocabulary of merger. The architecture of the Tenth Schedule, however, was designed precisely to prevent such mischief, writes SC senior advocate Sanjay Hegde in his Edit article The Aaya Rams, Gaya Rams of Punjab today. The Rajya Sabha was conceived by the framers as the chamber of sober second thought. It risks becoming the chamber of arithmetical absorption, he avers. Talking about the US-Iran conflict, Trump desperately needs a way out from his self-made military disaster, one whose outcome will determine the remainder of his term keeping in mind this year's upcoming US mid-term Congressional elections. Iran's current hardline rulers see themselves as being in a stronger strategic position, writes Indian Foreign Service (ret'd) officer Gaddam Dharmendra in his Op-Ed article Iran's new, wild card — Houthis on the Red Sea. Iran's ruling security establishment has settled into a wait-and-watch mode. There is a 'blockade-on-blockade' situation, with Iran and the US competing to control shipping in the Strait of Hormuz. Iran, however, holds a wild card, ie, Yemen's Houthis, who can impose a third blockade in the Red Sea, disrupting oil supplies from Saudi Arabia's western Yanbu port.

Coming to technology, AI is being slowly bypassed by the Internet of Things (IoT), a network of physical objects embedded with sensors, software and communication technologies, enabling them to connect to the Internet and exchange data automatically without direct human involvement. But the very ubiquity that makes IoT revolutionary also makes it terrifying, writes Lok Sabha MP and former I&B minister Manish Tewari in his Edit article The incredible Internet of Things. The marriage of IoT and AI is a transition that dwarfs the original Internet's impact. The current state of affairs is both a staggering engineering triumph and a policy quagmire, he writes.

Putting the fun into Work

Getting back to work after a long vacation or after that relaxing weekend can be quite a task. Mondays are daunting, while mid-week blues are enough to make you want to crawl under the covers and not go to work. But what happens when going to work becomes something to look forward to? Of late, many employers are getting quirkier and more innovative with their team bonding activities, engaging their employees in a fun and interactive atmosphere and making offices an actual fun place to work. From themed potlucks and TGIFs to traditional games, it looks like corporate offices today are breaking out of the strictly professional tag, and are focusing more on the person who matters the most — the employee.

Shrinika Thanikachalam, who works in a media agency in the city, says that their agency had recently organised a corporate pot luck contest among the employees. "It was a really huge deal. We were asked to draw lots and we were split into three teams. Each team had to come up with a team name, a logo and a menu in a stipulated period of time. It was fun because everyone, men included, had to cook. We even formed a WhatsApp group to plan the entire thing."

The actual potluck happened over a three-day period, and our team, Bite and Chew, dialled things up with a live barbecue and mocktail counter in office. We had someone from another agency be the judge and we were asked to plan things out carefully, ensuring that food did not go to waste. While our team did not follow a particular theme, one of the other teams chose Kerala cuisine as their theme, and served dishes pertaining to that cuisine alone. We plan to make this a regular activity going forward." Tarun Mishra, who works with an IT firm in the city adds, "Potlucks are the easiest way to bond, as food is the binding factor among most people. They also add a personal touch as people bring home-cooked meals. It involves a bit of self-pride, too, when people like your dishes. At our firm, we have potlucks on a regular basis, where people bring different kinds of dishes - it is like India on a platter. I remember once a girl had brought beetroot halwa and the dish was so tasty, it became a conversation starter for us. I had never spoken to this girl before. It does a lot in bringing out the best in people." There are other corporates which indulge in team bonding activities, which include team outings. Nomitha Nandakumar, who works at an MNC says, "We have regular team outings, not just within departments, but interdepartmental ones as well. These outings are usually fun, and packed with activities which include games you can play in groups such as treasure hunt and charades. At office, we have this break group and interchange policy, where employees are encouraged to come out of the comfort zone of their group and interact with new members of the team and work together. This ensures that there is no groupism of any sort. Then of course, there are the usual sports teams that each department has, and inter-department sports tournaments, too." Festivals are also a time when team bonding activities are at their peak. What is fascinating to note is that this is also the time when employees themselves take the initiative to do something out-of-the-box and quirky, keeping up with the general good spirit and cheer of the season. From Secret Santas and Best Christmas Tree contests during Christmas, to dressing up in ethnic wear for Pongal, there are many activities that take place. Poornima Ranjit, who works with a multiplex chain in the city says, "We are over 200 employees, and during festival times, we have activities where we have almost everyone participating in various games that are organised, depending on what festival it is. For instance, for Pongal, we had traditional games like lemon and spoon race. Apart from that, we also have activities in smaller groups like there was this game where we merged photos of two people in office and we had to identify who those people were. There was another game where we played only a video without the voice of a popular punch dialogue in a movie and the teams will have to enact and repeat the dialogue. Games like this is a great way to get to know people from other teams as well as take a break from the usual pressure you deal with at work." At Deepa and Arvind Athreya's event management company, there is no concept of employees — they are all family. "We have a number of activities in

When your ex becomes your co-worker

Office breakups are the toughest, especially because you have to see you're ex every day at work and if that is not enough you've to work with them as well. An office breakup can affect you in several ways and can be very demotivating. We give you a few tips on how to deal with your ex when he/she is a co-worker...

- Be professional. Don't bring your personal problems to work. As difficult as ex to your other co-workers, as they are going to find out sooner or later. Let the breakup stay between the two of you.

- Your ex is going to move on. If you see him/her get close to someone else at work, just ignore. It is hard to watch the person you loved, flirt with someone else, but acceptance is the best way to go about it. Do not react.

- If he/she is ignoring you at work and behaves as though nothing has happened, follow suit. You don't have to go out of the way to find out what the issue is. Now that you have broken up, it is better to mind your own business.

- Don't let the breakup demotivate you at work. Set higher goals and work towards them. Distraction will help.

- Increase your non-work social life. It is better to hang out with friends who are not your colleagues. Avoid talking about the breakup, and distract yourself completely.

- If you ex is doing everything to sabotage you at work, take time and clear out the differences. If that doesn't work, take the issue to a higher official and discuss the matter.

- Let time heal you. It might take a while, but time certainly will help!

it may seem, treat your ex as just another employee at work.

- What is the status of the relationship now? Is he/she your friend now or just a colleague or will you consider dating them again? If you have made up your mind about moving on in life, it is better to cut them out.

- If you haven't gotten over the breakup as yet, don't talk about the relationship with your ex at work. It will only disturb the both of you!

- Don't gossip. Don't backbite about your

Sharing personal information helps women get hired

A female applicant strongly raises her chances of getting hired if she gives out personal information, finds a new study, contradicting the conventional theory that if a woman wants equal footing professionally, she should not share any personal information.

The findings showed that female candidates who gave personal information clarifying her resume gaps raised their chance of being hired by 30 to 40 per cent, compared to a comparable female candidate who provided no personal information. "Our study provides the first-ever evidence that women who conceal personal information dramatically lower their hiring prospects," said Joni Hersch, a professor involved in the research.

Employers overwhelmingly preferred to hire female candidates who provided information to explain a resume gap, regardless of content.

"If we start to encourage honest conversations between employers and employees on an official level, it could lead to meaningful change in the quality of applicants, particularly in industries that have been so resistant to providing family-friendly work policies," added one of the researchers, Jennifer Bennett Shinall.

For the study, the team included 3,022 people who acted as potential employers and had to choose between two job candidates, described as mostly similar except for their openness about a 10-year gap in their job histories. The gap was explained with information such as taking time off to raise children or a recent divorce as the reason for leaving and wanting to re-enter the workforce.

The link between grit and performance revealed

There are many paths to success, but the significance of grit in helping you reach that goal has been greatly overstated, according to a psychologist. Researcher Marcus Crede and his colleagues conducted a meta-analysis of all prior research on grit.

Their results found no evidence that grit is a good predictor of success. While some educators are working to enhance grit in students, Crede says there's no indication that it's possible to boost levels. And even if it was possible, it might not matter.

Grit is defined as perseverance and commitment to long-term goals. The research is relatively new compared to the decades of work on performance indicators such as conscientiousness and intelligence. "If you look at the questions on the grit measure, they're often almost identical to the questions that we ask when we measure conscientiousness. Many are almost word-for-word the same. It's really just a repackaging or relabeling of conscientiousness, which we've known about for over 50 years. It's perhaps a sexier title, but it's nothing new," Crede said.

Seven new corridors, 65 stations, spanning nearly 100 km, set to be developed at the cost of approximately Rs 48,204.56 crore — the Delhi government has approved the Delhi Metro's new extension plan under Phase V(B), Chief Minister Rekha Gupta said on Sunday. The latest expansion is focused on improving connectivity in densely populated areas in Outer Delhi and rural belt such as Narela, Najafgarh, Nangloi and parts of North Delhi, while also strengthening links across the existing network.

"This project will play a key role in ensuring balanced and inclusive urban development across Delhi," the CM was quoted as saying in a statement by her office as the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation (DMRC) marked its 32nd Foundation Day.

The seven corridors, spanning about 97.16 km, are Dhansa Bus Stand-Nangloi, Central Secretariat-Kishangarh, Samaypur Badli-Narela, Kirti Nagar-Palam, Jor Bagh-Mithapur, Shastri Park-Mayur Vihar Phase III and Keshavpuram-Rohini Sector 34. Among these, completion targets for four priority corridors, which are yet to be named by officials, is 2029.

The proposal for the project will now be sent to the Central government for approval.

Last December, the Cabinet had approved

Phase V (A), a 16-km expansion, which primarily focuses on providing connectivity to the Central Vista corridor.

"The complete length of Phase V will be around 200 km across Delhi-NCR," DMRC MD Vikas Kumar had told The Indian Express in an interview earlier this year. These remaining corridors seek to expand metro coverage into the NCR states. The DMRC will now prepare revised Detailed Project Reports (DPRs) for both priority and non-priority corridors before seeking final approvals from the Centre.

The Dhansa Bus Stand-Nangloi corridor, spanning about 11.8 km, will be fully elevated and connect areas such as Najafgarh, Bakkarwala and Nangloi, with existing interchanges.

The Central Secretariat-Kishangarh line, about 16 km long, will have a significant underground stretch and connect key locations including Jawaharlal Nehru University and the Prime Ministers' Museum.

The Samaypur Badli-Narela corridor will extend the existing Yellow Line further north, bringing areas such as Holambi Kalan and Alipur onto the Metro map. The Keshavpuram-Rohini Sector 34 corridor, at over 16 km, will be fully elevated and serve residential and institutional areas in northwest Delhi. Other corridors will combine elevated and underground sections. The Kirti Nagar-Palam stretch will extend the Green Line and provide interchange points with the Pink and Magenta lines. The Jor Bagh-Mithapur corridor, nearly 17 km long, will connect South and Southeast Delhi with multiple interchanges, while the Shastri Park-Mayur Vihar Phase III Corridor will improve connectivity in East Delhi, including areas such as Trilokpur.

Inferno in Vivek Vihar building leaves trail of death, rescue hurdles emerge in Delhi

New Delhi.(Agency)

It was anything but an ordinary morning in Vivek Vihar. Instead of calm streets and waking households, towering flames tore through a residential building, with thick smoke. The silence after the flames were extinguished was even more haunting, as grief replaced panic.

Jyotjit Sabarwal, head of the Shaheed Bhagat Singh Sewa Dal's disaster unit, said accessibility was a major challenge. "We got information around 6 am and rushed with our team. The first body was found on the second floor. As we moved ahead, five more bodies were found on the third floor. On reaching the top floor, it was clear several people were trapped. A digital lock reportedly prevented their escape," he said.

Volunteers packed the bodies and transported them to Guru Teg Bahadur Hospital mortuary. "The bodies were stuck to the floor and hot at that time. We poured water before lifting them," he added. A resident said the fire started on the second floor and spread rapidly. "Someone alerted us around 3:30 am. We ran downstairs, but soon the staircase was engulfed," he said. Another resident, Vikas Sahani, said, "If firefighters hadn't arrived within minutes.

Delhi HC says no RTI access to spousal income

New Delhi.(Agency)

The Delhi HC has said that an individual cannot obtain details of their spouse's income by filing an application under the Right to Information Act. The ruling came in a case where a wife argued that such information was necessary for deciding her maintenance claim.

Justice Purushendra Kumar Kaurav said personal information, unless linked to public interest, is exempt from disclosure under Section 8 of the Act. The court also relied on the position of the Supreme Court of India, which has held that income tax returns are personal information.

The case arose from a petition filed by the husband challenging a 2021 order of the Central Information Commission, which had directed income tax authorities to disclose his taxable income details for the financial year 2007-08 to his estranged wife.

Setting aside the CIC order as "unsustainable in law," the high court, in its April 28 judgment, said the information sought was clearly personal and did not fall under the exception of "larger public interest." The court added that the RTI Act aims to promote transparency in public authorities, not to allow disclosure of private information unrelated to public interest.

FLIGHTS OPERATIONS HIT

The adverse weather has also begun affecting air travel. SpiceJet said in a post on X that due to bad weather in Delhi, all departures and arrivals, along with consequential flights, may be impacted, urging passengers to check their flight status.

Overnight Rain, Thunderstorms In Delhi Bring Relief From Heat

New Delhi.(Agency)

At Safdarjung, the city's base station, the minimum temperature was recorded at 18.8 degrees Celsius, 5.9 notches below normal. IMD data showed Palam recorded a low of 17.9 degrees Celsius, 7.7 degrees below normal, while The Ridge logged a minimum temperature of 18 degrees Celsius, down by 7 degrees.

Lodi Road recorded a minimum of 20 degrees Celsius, 3 degrees below normal, and Ayanagar 19 degrees Celsius,

Delhi govt tightens rules on traffic challans

Under the new framework, avoiding challans will not be possible, and timely resolution will be mandatory.

Violators cannot directly approach courts without first following the prescribed process.

New Delhi.(Agency)

The Delhi Government has introduced a structured, time-bound system for settling traffic challans, signalling a stricter approach to road discipline. The move aims to curb violations, improve safety, and ensure transparency through a fully digital process.

Under the new framework, avoiding challans will not be possible, and timely resolution will be mandatory. Violators cannot directly approach courts without first following the prescribed process.

CM Rekha Gupta said the government will implement amendments to the Central Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989. The revised system is more stringent and technology-driven. Individuals committing five or more violations in a year will be treated as serious offenders, with possible suspension or disqualification of their driving licence.

Challans will be issued physically or electronically, including through camera-based surveillance. E-challans will be sent within three days if contact details are available, while physical notices will be delivered within 15 days. All records will be maintained on an online portal. Motorists have been advised to update their contact details.

After issuance, violators will have 45 days to pay or challenge the challan online. If ignored, it will be deemed accepted, with payment required within 30 days. If a challenge is rejected, payment must be made or the matter taken to court after depositing 50 percent of the fine.

The CM made it clear that once deadlines lapse, daily electronic notices will be issued. Continued non-payment will lead to restrictions on all vehicle-related services, including payment of taxes and processing of driving licence or registration-related requests.

Continued non-payment will lead to restrictions on vehicle-related services, including tax payments and licence or registration processes.

New Delhi.(Agency)

Traffic violators in Delhi will now have to deposit 50% of the fine before approaching a court to contest it under a new framework, which introduces a structured and time-bound process for settling challans with an emphasis on digital monitoring and stricter enforcement, a statement from Chief Minister Rekha Gupta's Office said on Sunday.

"Delaying traffic challans will cost dear, and payments must be made within deadlines," the CM was quoted as saying in the statement. It will trigger daily electronic notices.

Continued non-payment will lead to restrictions on vehicle-related services, including tax payments and licence or registration processes. Vehicles may also be flagged as "not to be transacted" on the portal, blocking further transactions until dues are cleared. In certain cases, and subject to court orders, vehicles may even be impounded.

Calling the system "fully digital, transparent and accountable," the CM said it is aimed at improving compliance with traffic rules and reducing road accidents.

The Delhi government, as per the statement, will also implement amendments to the Central Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989. As part of this, individuals committing five or more violations within a year will be classified as "serious offenders" and may face suspension or disqualification of their driving licence. Under the revised system, officials said, violators will have 45 days from the issuance of a challan to either pay the fine or challenge it before a grievance redressal officer through an online portal.

If no action is taken within this period, the challan will be deemed accepted, and the individual will have 30 additional days to make the payment. If a challenge is rejected, the violator can either pay within 30 days or move court after depositing half the challan amount. Failure to act within these timelines will result in the challan being treated as accepted, with payment required.

Odisha govt tightens boat safety norms

BHUBANESWAR.(Agency)

The state government has decided to tighten safety norms for boats operating in its inland waters following a string of recent capsizing incidents in the country.

A high-level meeting on boat safety and security presided over by principal secretary in the Commerce and Transport department NBS Rajput was held on Sunday. It was decided that boat operators are required to ensure passengers wear life jackets upon boarding.

It was directed that all operational boats must carry an adequate number of life jackets equal to passenger capacity, along with life buoys and fire safety equipment as per norms. Authorities have been instructed to conduct rigorous surprise checks on boats. Besides, strict punitive action will be taken against operators found overloading vessels or failing to enforce the mandatory wearing of life jackets by all passengers and crew.

It was decided that there will be coordinated action among the Fisheries and ARD, Tourism, Forest, Environment and Climate Change departments and other concerned authorities to ensure no vessel falls outside the safety net.

Official sources said to support boat operators, the state government provides life safety equipment including lifebuoys, life jackets and fire extinguishers under the Sahid Baji Rout Nujatra Suraksha Yojana. The equipment is supplied free of cost to government boats and at a 95 per cent subsidy to private operators.

Intel warns of post-counting violence in Kerala; police tighten security

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM.(Agency)

Ahead of the vote counting on Monday, the state intelligence wing has warned of possibility of political flare-ups in the state.

The intelligence report has pointed out that strife could brew in certain pockets of Kasaragod, Kannur, Kozhikode, Palakkad, Thrissur, Kollam and Thiruvananthapuram districts, and that additional forces should be deployed to avert any eventualities. The report emphasised that Kozhikode, Kannur and Kasaragod districts should be watched keenly, while hot spots in other districts should also be monitored.

Following these reports, the police have fielded 10,000 more policemen, apart from the local force, to crackdown on any violent incidents. About 2,000 personnel from the central armed police forces have also been deployed, sources told.

The intelligence wing also warned of possible attacks targeting certain candidates who contested the election. Candidates, whose threat perception were deemed high, has been provided police pickets outside their residences, while patrolling has also been increased to rule out any misadventure from the part of political criminals.

Police sources said there has been apprehensions on whether political showdown would in turn precipitate communal frenzy in certain troubled areas and special measures have been taken to keep things under control.

"Instructions have been given to identify agent provocateurs in each constituency limits and they have been issued warnings not to indulge in any criminal activities that could endanger peace," said a senior police official.

Gujarat Hardlook: Behind party's weakening Khadia connect, winds of change in BJP bastion

Ahmedabad.(Agency)

Centuries-old buildings that became central to the community, alongside those added during the Sultanate era, stand side by side in Khadia. In many ways, this part of Ahmedabad still mirrors the city's spirit during the textile mill era. But then migration, primarily provoked by mills' closure, changed the narrative. Ritu Sharma reports: A STRANGER cannot go unnoticed in Khadia, people say. Here, word travels "within minutes" through its narrow streets and the myriad of neighbourhoods set up on them.

Here, broad main roads taper into arterial lanes, which further narrow into bylanes connecting the meandering pol or alleys, leaving the din of traffic far behind. These alleys can barely accommodate a two-wheeler. The quieter, narrower sheri opens into traditional homes with ornate wooden and lime-plastered facades. From the outside, they reveal little about the multi-room houses within, with large central courtyards standing over tanks that collect rainwater for harvesting.

Now a mix of traditional and contemporary buildings, Khadia lies at the heart of the 600-year-old walled city of Ahmedabad.

Over time, many families have moved out, as the narrow streets offer neither parking space nor the lifestyle associated with modern real estate.

Dr Hemant Bhatt, 58, a BJP media cell convenor, owns a house in west Ahmedabad but prefers to live in Khadia. "Around 300 years ago, Khadia was called Akbarpura, for it was the abode of the elite of the Sultanate era. Even today, there are several dargahs and masjid (mosques), such as the Sarangpur Masjid, the Jama Masjid and Hazira Ni Pol, in the area. There used to be a wide road from the Sarangpur Darwaza to the Jama Masjid. Later, frequent Maratha attacks led to plunder... and the intricate, defensive structures you see today were developed during that period," he tells The Indian Express. The area has over 2,600 heritage structures.

Gujarat begins bird flu surveillance as Maharashtra culls 1.4 lakh chickens — 4 km from state border

Ahmedabad.(Agency)

The Gujarat government carried out surveillance of poultry farms in Tapi district for the third day on Sunday following chickens in neighbouring Maharashtra tested positive for avian influenza or bird flu, leading to a large-scale culling of birds across the border. Avian influenza is an infectious viral illness caused by Type A viruses that primarily affect wild aquatic birds and poultry, causing large-scale die-offs. The last time this zoonotic epidemic hit the border of Gujarat and Maharashtra was in 2021.

Dr Kanti M Damor, Regional Joint Director of the Animal Husbandry Department for South Gujarat told The Indian Express, "While there have not been any symptoms or poultry deaths due to bird flu in Gujarat as of now, we started surveillance activities from May 1 and several teams of veterinarians are on the ground in Tapi district, conducting checks at all poultry farms, with coordination with the district administration."

The Indian Express on May 3 reported that the Maharashtra government has decided to cull over 1.4 lakh birds in Navapur of Nandurbar district to prevent a larger outbreak. Navapur is only 3.8 km from Uchchhal taluka of Gujarat's Tapi district, just outside the 3-km containment zone mandated during such epidemics.

A veterinary official on the ground in Tapi told The Indian Express, "We have completed a round of surveillance and a specialised team of veterinarians from Surat have collected samples from the birds for testing. We have not seen any large-scale mortality so far, which would indicate the presence of bird flu. But, we are awaiting the results of tests."

The veterinary official said, "Apart from the three poultry farms, we are also surveying 12 villages in a 10-km radius in Uchchhal taluka for backyard poultry, using four teams including veterinarians and livestock inspectors."

Barricades to curb speeding, protect wildlife in Kawal

ADILABAD.(Agency)

Authorities are stepping up efforts to regulate traffic in the core area of the Kawal Tiger Reserve in the erstwhile Adilabad district, as rising vehicle movement continues to threaten wildlife. Barricades are being erected at multiple points to slow vehicles and curb high-speed movement through the protected zone. The move follows a resolution passed last year by the State Wildlife Board permitting heavy vehicle movement through the core area, while also recommending strict speed control measures. However, over the past six months, traffic has increased significantly, with heavy vehicles frequently using the stretch.

The core area has about 120 km of road, where vehicles, especially at night, often travel at high speeds, leading to a rise in animal deaths.

Heavy vehicles are also frequently parked along the roadside, adding to safety and ecological concerns. Villagers allege a double standard in enforcement. While restrictions are imposed on activities such as beedi leaf collection and sand excavation in forest and Godavari river areas, heavy vehicles continue to pass through the core zone with limited checks. They further claim that lorries, particularly 16-tyre and 18-tyre vehicles, use the route to bypass toll plazas, resulting in revenue loss to the government. Locals questioned why such movement is permitted when the forest department receives no additional revenue.

Environmentalists have also raised concerns over monitoring gaps. While forest fires are tracked in real time from Dehradun, with alerts sent to field officials, they questioned why similar systems are not in place to regulate night-time vehicle movement. Allegations have surfaced that some vehicles use fake slips to pass through the core area after 10 pm, violating existing rules. They have suggested installing speed guns, strengthening night patrols and imposing strict penalties to curb violations. Experts also noted that, as per Road Transport Authority norms, vehicle movement should be regulated based on road capacity. Despite the core area having a single road, heavy multi-axle vehicles continue to ply regularly. Forest officials said around 50 animals were killed in road accidents in 2025, ranging from reptiles to deer.

Hailstorms threaten rabi paddy crops in Odisha's Koraput

JEYPORE.(Agency)

Hailstorms accompanied by lightning and high-velocity winds over the past three days have reportedly caused extensive damage to standing rabi paddy crops in Koraput district, raising concerns among farmers.

Large swathes of agricultural land in Jeypore, Kundra and Borigumma blocks have been reportedly affected by the adverse weather, particularly as the paddy crop is currently in the crucial flowering stage. Farmers fear that the combination of hail impact and strong winds could significantly reduce grain formation and yield.

According to sources, nearly 25,000 hectares were brought under rabi paddy cultivation across these regions during the January-February sowing period. The crops, which depends on irrigation from the Upper Kolab dam reservoir, had shown promising growth until the recent spell of inclement weather.

However, recurring hailstorms and gusty winds have flattened portions of the crops with lightning strikes and heavy showers further aggravating the situation. Agricultural experts said damage at the flowering stage can severely affect productivity.

"The paddy flowering process will be severely affected and grains cannot matured fully amid such inclement weather conditions," said Prashant Parida, director of the regional centre of MS Swaminathan Research Foundation at Jeypore. District agriculture officer Lalatendu Mohapatra said the department is actively monitoring the climatic conditions and field staff have been alerted accordingly.

Atop Everest Base Camp, 21-year-old from Kerala reaches first milestone of Himalayan dream

ALAPPUZHA.(Agency)

It took determination, sacrifice and some astute financial management. But as he stood at the Everest Base Camp in Gorakshesh, at an altitude of 5,364m, Kesav Suneesh felt closer to his lifelong dream of scaling Mt Everest.

Working as a helper in a vegetable shop at Kayamkulam and occasionally as a food delivery boy, the 21-year-old from Kandalloor in Alappuzha had been steadily building towards the extraordinary goal. Last week, he achieved the first milestone, reaching the camp after days of trekking through the rugged terrain of Nepal.

"I always dreamed of conquering Everest. However, money is the biggest challenge," said the BCom student from IHRD College, Karthikapally. Everest expeditions cost an estimated Rs 50 lakh, unaffordable for Kesav and his modest-earning family. Determined not to let circumstances define his limits, Kesav worked for months, earning about Rs 35,000 from the vegetable shop and making additional money through food delivery. With these savings, he began his journey.

The Nepal trip was not his first adventure. In September 2025, Kesav set out on a nationwide journey covering over 18 states. However, tragedy struck when his grandmother passed away, forcing him to return home in January. He resumed work, saved again, and restarted his mission. On April 7, Kesav left Kayamkulam. Travelling in second-class train compartments and ordinary buses to manage costs, he reached Gorakhpur in Uttar Pradesh, then crossed into Nepal via the Sonauli border. From there, he journeyed by bus to Salleri and began his trek on foot.

Over the next eight days, he covered more than 132 km, passing through Paiya, Tengboche, Dingboche and Lobuche before finally reaching Gorakshesh on April 19.

"My entire trip cost only around Rs 16,000," he said. "I carried a tent and camped wherever possible, and cooked food to reduce expenses." Kesav is fully aware that reaching the summit of Everest is a different challenge altogether, one requiring advanced mountaineering gear, professional guidance and weeks of preparation.

KKR players smash cake on Andre Russell's face after win vs SRH

New Delhi. (Agency)

Hilarious celebrations unfolded at the team hotel after Kolkata Knight Riders beat SunRisers Hyderabad at the Rajiv Gandhi International Stadium on Sunday. KKR exacted revenge on SRH this season, handing them a comprehensive seven-wicket defeat.

Spinners Sunil Narine and Varun Chakravarthy spun a web around the SRH batting line-up before young Angkrish Raghuvanshi calmly guided the 166-run chase in Hyderabad. After the win, the team returned to the hotel and marked the occasion by smashing cake on the face of none other than Andre Russell, who had celebrated his birthday a few days before the game.

KKR posted a video of the celebrations on social media, where players can be seen rubbing a whole chocolate cake on Russell's face. Russell's former West Indies teammate Narine was the first to start the fun, while head coach Abhishek Nayar held Russell from behind as the rest of the squad watched the hilarious scene unfold.

KKR HAMMER SRH IN HYDERABAD Kolkata Knight Riders continued their remarkable turnaround in IPL 2026 with a convincing seven-wicket win over SunRisers Hyderabad on Sunday, chasing down 166 with ease in Hyderabad.

Once winless in their first six matches, KKR have now won three on the trot to keep their playoff hopes alive. The turnaround has been driven largely by their spin attack, with Varun Chakravarthy leading the charge. The mystery spinner returned to form with figures of 3 for 36, troubling SRH batters with his variations, while Sunil Narine chipped in with two wickets and also brought up his 200th IPL scalp.

SRH started strongly after being put in to bat, with Abhishek Sharma and Travis Head racing to 44 in just 3.3 overs. Head looked particularly dangerous, smashing a 22-ball fifty and threatening a massive score. However, Chakravarthy turned the game on its head by dismissing him for 61 in the ninth over. The wicket triggered a collapse, with SRH losing nine wickets for just 60 runs. Heinrich Klaasen failed to capitalise on a dropped chance, while Ishan Kishan was left stranded without support from the middle order. Narine then delivered a decisive blow by removing Kishan and Salil Arora in the same over, as SRH were bowled out for 165 in 19 overs.

Dad, it's a private plane: Mark Wood reveals bizarre story about IPL team owner

Miami. (Agency)

England fast bowler Mark Wood revealed a bizarre story from his time in the Indian Premier League, recalling how a franchise owner once offered to fly him out on a private plane just to get him to play one match in the tournament. Speaking on a BBC podcast, Wood narrated an incident from a season where he had featured in a handful of games before falling ill. The England pacer said the team management, including the owner, was desperate to have him available despite his condition. Hence, the team owner offered to send a private plane, fly him out, get him to play the match, and then fly him back to the hotel.

It is important to note that the England fast bowler did not have an extensive run in the Indian Premier League. Wood's IPL career has been limited to just five matches across two franchises. He made a solitary appearance for Chennai Super Kings before featuring four times for Lucknow Super Giants in 2023.

The small sample size, combined with his own recollection of playing "about five games" in a season, strongly hints that the incident took place during his time with Lucknow. That context becomes important, because Wood went on to reveal that an IPL franchise owner personally called him up in an attempt to get him to play a match, even offering to fly him in on a private plane.

In the interview, Wood recalled that he had fallen seriously ill after playing four matches in the tournament. He had three days to recover for the game, but was unlikely to make it in time. What followed was perhaps in equal part funny and equal part sad.

HERE'S MARK WOOD'S IPL STORY

"I'll give you a story which wasn't fun. I wasn't very well. After about five games, I'd picked up an illness there, and the next game was about three days' time. So every half an hour, the doctor who had stayed back would come to my room, take my vitals, and try to get me right.

I remember one day, the IPL team owner was ringing me and he was like, 'How are we feeling? Are we ready to go?' I was like, 'Honestly, I've ate and drank nothing. I can't get out of bed still. I'm hoping that, you know, if I can think'.

IPL Play of the Day: Mohammed Siraj's opening-over storm blows away PBKS top order

struck twice in the opening over to derail Punjab Kings against Gujarat Titans. The burst exposed how heavily

Punjab's batting depends on a fast powerplay start.

Ahmedabad. (Agency)

There's a reason Punjab Kings have looked like one of the most dangerous batting units in IPL 2026. Their top four of Prabhsimran Singh, Priyansh Arya, Cooper Connolly and Shreyas Iyer has made a habit of taking games away inside the powerplay itself.

We saw that peak version not too long ago. A 126-run opening stand between Priyansh and Prabhsimran set up a fearless 265 chase against Delhi Capitals. That's the template.

Start fast, stay ahead, make the rest look easy.

But cricket rarely sticks to the script for too long. Against the Gujarat Titans, that entire structure came crashing down early. No rhythm, no platform, just pressure from ball one. And at the centre of it was Mohammed Siraj, who didn't just strike early, he broke the game open before Punjab could even settle.

HOW SIRAJ ROCKED PUNJAB EARLY

Siraj didn't take time to warm into the game. He arrived switched on. Second ball of the innings, first breakthrough. Priyansh Arya, usually the one dictating terms, went hard at width but didn't get hold of it. At deep backward point, Nishant Sindhu dived low to his left and held on. Early damage.

Cooper Connolly walked in and walked back in the space of one ball. A sharp delivery jagged back in, took the inside edge and settled safely in Jos Buttler's gloves. The review only delayed the outcome.

Three balls, two wickets. Punjab's entire top-order blueprint undone before it could even begin.

By the time the over ended, the tone of the innings had already shifted. Yes, Shreyas Iyer managed a boundary off the penultimate ball, but the damage was done. Punjab never quite recovered, crawling to 35 in the powerplay instead of dictating terms like they usually do.

Add in the pressure from Kagiso Rabada and Jason Holder, and suddenly the most explosive top order of the season looked stuck.

GUJARAT NEEDS MORE OF SIRAJ

There's a reason why this spell matters beyond just one game. After their win over Royal Challengers Bengaluru, Rashid Khan had spoken about the bowlers needing to take more responsibility.

GT don't quite have the same explosive middle-order firepower as some other teams, so their margin often starts with the ball.

Coming into this game, Punjab were exactly the kind of side that could push totals into the 190-200 range or beyond if allowed a start. Instead, Siraj shut that door early. No momentum, no freedom, no platform. He now has 11 wickets from 10 matches this season. Solid numbers, but the feeling is there's still another level he can hit.

GT have quietly built a three-match winning run, but they're still outside the top four. With four league games left, they don't just need wins, they need control like this.

MI vs LSG preview: Mumbai, Lucknow fight for survival as early elimination threat looms

New Delhi. (Agency)

Mumbai Indians and Lucknow Super Giants are in all sorts of trouble and won't have much room for error when they lock horns in their IPL 2026 match on Monday, May 4 at the Wankhede Stadium in Mumbai. Both teams are languishing in the bottom two spots on the table and need something more than special to turn their campaigns around. For MI, there's absolutely no place to hide, as another defeat would more or less end their campaign. No team in the history of the IPL has qualified for the playoffs with 12 points, and this is exactly why the upcoming game holds so much importance. The Super Giants, on the other hand, aren't in a comfortable position either, and with a net run rate of -1.106, they face an uphill task as well.

CAN LUCKNOW BOUNCE BACK?

When the Super Giants began their campaign with two wins in their first three games, they looked in pretty good shape. But as the tournament has progressed, they have gone from bad to worse. Having lost their last five matches, LSG are searching for inspiration to turn their fortunes around. Mohsin Khan did provide a spark against Kolkata Knight Riders with a five-wicket haul, but Rinku Singh's heroics ensured KKR had the last laugh in Lucknow.

Rishabh Pant's struggles with the bat haven't helped the Super Giants by any stretch of the imagination. Mohammed Shami's role against MI will be crucial, given how challenging conditions at the Wankhede can be for bowlers, and this is where his wealth of experience could prove vital. With MI not in the best of form, LSG might see this as an opportunity to return to winning ways.

WILL ROHIT SHARMA RETURN AGAINST LSG?

It's been quite some time since Rohit Sharma last played, having been sidelined with a hamstring injury he sustained earlier in the tournament. In his absence, MI's top order has undergone several changes. With the team just one bad game away from elimination.

Shubman Gill continues social media banter, this time teases PBKS in Insta post

New Delhi. (Agency)

Shubman Gill once again grabbed attention off the field after Gujarat Titans' win over Punjab Kings. The GT skipper appeared to continue his now-familiar post-match banter, this time aimed at the IPL 2026 table-toppers. Gill has built a pattern of dropping something on social media after big wins. Shortly after the Ahmedabad victory, he shared a photo with Washington Sundar and Sai Sudharsan, recreating a pose closely linked with PBKS, adding fuel to the chatter online.

"Bas jeetna hai. Aava de." This isn't entirely new territory for Gill. Similar posts earlier in the season had already caught attention, but this latest one has only added to that growing pattern.

HOW SHUBMAN GILL HAS STARTED A BANTER STORM

Gill's social media has quietly turned into a post-match extension of GT's wins. It started in Chennai. After beating Chennai Super Kings at Chepauk, Gill posted a picture holding the iconic yellow whistle, a symbol deeply tied to CSK's "Whistle Podu" culture. The caption read "Nandri Chennai," which only added to the cheekiness of it. Then came the RCB game. After getting the better of Royal Challengers Bengaluru, Gill followed it up with another Instagram post featuring Virat Kohli. The caption, "Play Bold @jaseholder98," looked like praise for Jason Holder on the surface, but many fans read it as a clever twist on RCB's "Play Bold" tagline.

The pattern is clear. Beat a big team, drop a post that feels casual but lands like a nudge. Not loud, not over the top, but just enough to get people talking. Some fans are loving it. Others feel it's pushing the line. Either way, Gill seems to know exactly what he's doing.

World Relays: India end disappointing campaign with injury and DNF

New Delhi. (Agency)

India endured a forgettable outing at the World Athletics Relays, with injuries and Did Not Finish (DNF) results derailing their campaign on the second day of competition on Sunday. The biggest blow came in the men's 4x400m relay, where India's hopes of securing direct qualification for the 2027 World Championships in Beijing came crashing down. Amoj Jacob suffered cramps during the race and was forced to pull out after receiving the baton from first-leg runner Dharamveer Choudhary, resulting in a DNF for the team. Rajesh Ramesh and Vishal TK were scheduled to run the final two legs.

Having failed to qualify for the finals on Saturday, India were competing in the second qualification round on Sunday, where the top two teams from each heat were to seal their spots for the World Championships. The missed opportunity means India must now rely on the World

Athletics Top Lists route, a far more uncertain and prolonged path to qualification.

BATON FALLS IN MEN'S 4x100

The setbacks continued in the men's 4x100m relay, where a lack of coordination proved costly. Third-leg runner Ragul Kumar fell on the track while attempting to hand over the baton to Gurindervir Singh, leading to a disqualification. Harsh Santosh Raut and Animesh Kujur had run the opening two legs. Kumar, who appeared to be in discomfort, had to be assisted off the track by volunteers. India's struggles with baton exchanges were further highlighted in the women's 4x100m event.

A fumbled exchange between Tamanna and Nithya Gandhe saw the baton dropped, forcing Gandhe to turn back and retrieve it after initially sprinting ahead. The team eventually finished with a time of 53.09 seconds in what turned out to be a chaotic run. Amid the disappointment, there was a minor positive for the Indian contingent. The mixed 4x100m relay team of Ragul Kumar, Nithya Gandhe, Animesh Kujur and Sneha SS set a new national record of 41.35 seconds, improving on the previous mark of 42.30 seconds set earlier this year. However, they could only finish sixth in their heat.

The mixed 4x400m relay team also fell short, with Theerthesh P Shetty, Kumari Saloni, Nihal William and Rashdeep Kaur finishing fifth in their heat with a time of 3:19.40.

Manchester United to hand Carrick permanent role after Champions League return?

Manchester United beat Liverpool 3-2

at Old Trafford to secure Champions

League qualification under caretaker boss Michael Carrick. The result has sharpened the debate over whether

Carrick should get the job permanently.

Manchester. (Agency)

Manchester United's return to the UEFA Champions League has intensified talk around Michael Carrick being handed the job on a permanent basis. The caretaker boss has overseen a sharp turnaround, and the latest win over Liverpool has only strengthened his case. United confirmed their Champions League qualification with a 3-2 win at Old Trafford. Speaking after the match, Carrick reflected on the turnaround since taking charge in January.

"It's been a good run. We've beaten some very, very good teams and it's been challenging. Sometimes we've won it in some ways, sometimes we've won it in other ways. I love doing what I'm doing. It's a great position for me to be in and it feels pretty natural if I'm totally honest," Carrick said.

"I'm not being blasé because it's a difficult role, but it feels like I've been here a long time, in different times on and off, but I can understand what it brings and to be sat in this position is a good position to be in. We will just have to wait and see. When we came in, the Champions League was a little bit in the distance so to be where we are, with three games to spare, is a good achievement," he added.

The result capped a strong run under Carrick, who has now won 10 of his 14 matches in charge, guiding United into the top five with games to spare after a difficult first half of the season.

WILL CARRICK BE MAN UNITED

PERMANENT MANAGER?

Carrick's numbers make a strong case. Since taking over in January, the 44-year-old has overseen a clear turnaround, with United climbing into third place with 64 points from 35 matches. More importantly, he has delivered Champions League qualification, something that looked unlikely when he first stepped in. Beyond results, there has been a visible shift in how United have approached games. They have found ways to win in different situations, something Carrick himself pointed to.

However, the decision is far from straightforward. A Champions League return brings added pressure, more fixtures, and the need for greater squad depth. United's hierarchy will have to decide whether Carrick is the long-term answer or if they look for a more experienced name to lead them into that next phase.

United Airlines Boeing 767 from Italy clips light pole and truck during Newark landing

World. (Agency)

A United Airlines passenger plane struck a light pole while landing at Newark Liberty International Airport on Sunday, damaging a delivery truck on the nearby highway, authorities said. The aircraft, a Boeing 767, was arriving from Venice with 221 passengers and 10 crew members on board. The airline said no one on the flight was injured.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the plane landed safely after it "came into contact with a light pole" during its final approach. JUST IN: Baltimore bakery truck struck by a United Airlines plane coming in for a landing at Newark Liberty International Airport in New Jersey. According to local reports, the plane was a United Airlines Boeing 767-400.

The New Jersey State Police said a landing tyre and the underside of the plane also struck a delivery truck. The pole then hit a Jeep travelling on the road. The driver of the truck was taken to hospital with minor injuries and later released, according to the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which runs the airport.

Aircraft approaching Newark often fly low over the New Jersey Turnpike, one of the busiest sections of Interstate 95, with the runway beginning close to the road.

'Minor damage' as operations resume

The port authority said an object had been struck and that the truck was damaged. It added that the aircraft had "minor damage" and the runway was checked for debris before normal operations resumed. United said its maintenance team would assess the aircraft and that the crew had been taken off duty while a safety review takes place.

The National Transportation Safety Board said an investigator would arrive on Monday. It has asked the airline to provide the cockpit voice recorder and flight data recorder.

Nepal govt set to cancel nearly 1,600 'politically motivated' appointments

Kathmandu. (Agency)

Around 1,600 political appointees holding constitutional positions and heading government boards and corporations are set to lose their jobs en masse through a sweeping ordinance issued by President Ramchandra Paudel, local media reported. The move aims to target politically motivated appointments made by previous governments, including the Sushila Karki-led interim government formed after the 'Gen Z' movement, according to the reports.

The termination of service ordinance, approved by President Poudel, is expected to come into effect at any moment, rendering 1,594 people jobless. Those affected will include vice-chancellors, rectors and deans of universities; chiefs and commissioners of all constitutional bodies; heads of government media; and chiefs and board members of government authorities.

Once implemented, the ordinance will amend 110 laws and affect the functioning of as many bodies.

The impact is expected to be particularly noticeable in sectors such as education, healthcare and public service delivery. And, in many cases, routine operations are likely to be disrupted due to the absence of authorised signatories, the media reports suggest. The Balendra Shah led government has yet to spell out a clear timeline or mechanism for fresh appointments.

Israel issues evacuation warning; kills 1, hurts 4 in Lebanon strikes

BEIRUT. (Agency)

Israeli strikes on southern Lebanon killed at least one person and wounded four rescuers on Sunday, the Lebanese health ministry said, as Israel maintained its attacks on the country despite a fragile truce in its war with Hezbollah.

In separate statements, the ministry said a strike on Arabsalim killed at least one person and wounded three, including a child, and another strike on Srifa wounded five people, including four rescuers from the Hezbollah-affiliated Islamic Health Committee.

"The ministry reiterates its condemnation of these repeated attacks and recalls what is included in Article 19 of the Geneva Convention regarding the need to verify that medical facilities are safe from any danger caused by attacks in conflict zones, while what is happening is exactly the opposite," it said.

Israel's military on Sunday issued new evacuation warnings in southern Lebanon for villages beyond the area it occupies. The warning covers more than 10 villages and towns, including several in the district of Nabatieh, which lies north of the Litani River, south of which Israel has stationed troops.

Arabsalim and Srifa were included in the warning. Lebanon's state-run National News Agency reported a series of Israeli strikes across southern Lebanon, including on towns not mentioned in the evacuation warning.

Since April 17, a fragile ceasefire has been in place between Israel and Lebanon, which was aimed at pausing the violence between the Hezbollah militant group and Israel's military. On Wednesday Israel's military chief of staff Eyal Zamir had threatened to strike Hezbollah "beyond the yellow line", which marks the area of Israeli control.

Three dead after suspected hantavirus hits polar cruise near Cape Verde

A suspected hantavirus

outbreak on the MV Hondius has left three people dead and three ill off Cape Verde. The

WHO is coordinating medical evacuation and assessing risks for passengers still on board.

World. (Agency)

Three people have died and three are ill after a Netherlands-based cruise ship was hit by a suspected outbreak of hantavirus, a rodent-borne virus that can cause fatal respiratory illness, authorities and media reports said on Sunday. Netherlands-based Oceanwide Expeditions said in a news release it was "managing a serious medical situation" on a polar expedition ship, the MV Hondius, which was off Cape Verde, an island nation in the Atlantic west of Africa. The cruise departed from Argentina about three weeks ago with around 150 passengers and stopped in the Antarctic and other locations on its way to Cape Verde, according to media reports.

A Dutch Foreign Ministry spokesperson confirmed that two Dutch passengers had died, but gave no further details. The World Health Organization said in an X post that one of the sick passengers was in intensive care in South Africa. Sky News reported the passenger is British, citing South Africa's Department of Health.

WHO said it was investigating the outbreak. Lab tests have confirmed hantavirus in one of the six people, the agency said.

Oceanwide Expeditions said Cape Verde authorities had not given permission for passengers requiring medical care to disembark, and Dutch authorities were as when people sweep out sheds where mice have been living. WHO said the virus can be spread between people in rare cases.

The illness begins with flu-like symptoms and can lead to heart and lung failure, with around 40% of cases resulting in death, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control. There are no specific drugs to treat hantavirus, so treatment focuses on supportive care, including putting patients on ventilators in severe cases.

"WHO is facilitating coordination between member states and the ship's operators for medical evacuation of two symptomatic passengers, as well as full public health risk assessment and support to the remaining passengers on board," the WHO said. The British Foreign Office and South Africa's Department of Health did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

seeking to organize repatriation of two symptomatic passengers along with the body of a deceased passenger.

Trump unveils Project Freedom to escort stranded ships through Hormuz

World. (Agency)

US President Donald Trump has announced a new maritime initiative, "Project Freedom," aimed at safely escorting foreign ships stranded in the Strait of Hormuz amid escalating tensions in the Middle East. In a post on Truth Social, Trump said multiple countries, most of them not directly involved in the ongoing regional conflict, had requested US assistance to help free their vessels, which remain stuck in the critical shipping corridor. He described the ships and their crews as "neutral and innocent bystanders" caught in a volatile situation.

Trump said the United States would guide these vessels out of restricted waters to ensure they can "freely and ably get on with their business." The operation is scheduled to begin Monday morning, Middle East time.

The US President emphasised that the move is a humanitarian effort, noting that many ships are running low on food and essential supplies needed to maintain safe living conditions for large crews onboard. He added that the initiative is intended to benefit all parties, including Iran and other countries in the region.

"I have told my representatives to inform them that we will use best efforts to get their Ships and Crews safely out of the Strait," Trump said, while adding that many of the vessels do not plan to return until the area is safe for navigation.

Trump also indicated that US officials are engaged in "very positive discussions" with Iran, raising the possibility of broader diplomatic progress. However, he issued a warning that any interference with the operation would be met with a forceful response, underscoring the high-stakes nature of the mission in one of the world's most strategically important maritime routes.

The Strait of Hormuz is a key artery for global oil shipments, and disruptions in the area have significant implications for international trade and energy markets. Earlier, amid the Middle East conundrum, US President Donald Trump has poured cold water on Iran's latest peace proposal, dismissing it as "not acceptable." He turned down Tehran's 14-point framework, which aims to shift the current ceasefire into a more durable settlement.

Nepal objects to India-China plan for Kailash Mansarovar Yatra via Lipulekh Pass

World. (Agency)

Nepal on Sunday objected to India and China planning to conduct the upcoming Kailash Mansarovar Yatra via Lipulekh Pass, claiming that it is Kathmandu's territory. In a statement, the Nepalese Foreign Ministry said that Kathmandu was not consulted before finalising the route for the pilgrimage.

New Delhi has been maintaining that Lipulekh belongs to it. Nepal's objection to the Kailash Mansarovar Yatra came days after India announced that it would be held between June and August. "The Nepal government is clear and fully committed to its stand that Lipulekh, Limpiyadhura and Kalapani, lying in the East of the Mahakali river are its inseparable territories based on the Sugauli Treaty of 1816," the foreign ministry said in the statement posted on social media.

"The Nepalese government has reiterated its clear stand to both India and China regarding the Kailash-Mansarovar tour to be organised via Nepalese territory, Lipulekh," it said.

Earlier, the Nepalese government had also requested the government of India not to conduct activities such as road construction, expansion, border trade and pilgrimage in the area, it said. The statement added that the Nepalese government has also informed China about it. "The Nepal government is always committed to resolving the border issue through diplomatic channels based on historical agreement, understanding, facts, maps and proofs in view of close and friendly relations existing between Nepal and India," the ministry said. Nepal claims that Lipulekh and Kalapani are its territories, whereas India maintains that the territories belong to it. Nepal's K.P. Oli-led government in May 2020 included the territories, including Kalapani and Lipulekh.

United Airlines Flight Hits Truck While Landing At US Airport

Washington. (Agency)

A United Airlines plane hit a lamppost and a delivery truck on a New Jersey highway while landing Sunday at Newark Liberty International Airport, officials told AFP. Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials said the Boeing 767 landed safely after arriving from Venice, Italy, and the agency would investigate the incident.

No injuries were reported on the plane, and the truck driver was taken to the hospital with minor injuries and released, the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey said in a statement.

The jet was carrying 221 passengers and 10 crew members. "While on approach to land at Newark Liberty International Airport, United Airlines Flight 169 struck a light pole on the New Jersey Turnpike around 2 p.m. local time on Sunday, May 3," the FAA said in a statement, adding that the plane sustained minor damage.

The Port Authority said in a statement that the plane caused "damage to a light post and a tractor trailer traveling south on the NJ Turnpike." The H&S Bakery truck "was unscathed" but "the wheel of the commercial plane crashed into the driver's window," according to Chuck Paterakis, a senior vice president for the company, who added "the truck driver suffered small cuts from the incident."

United Airlines said in a statement it plans to "conduct a rigorous flight safety investigation into the incident and our crew has been removed from service as part of this process."

New Jersey State Police, who responded to the highway incident, and aircraft manufacturer Boeing did not immediately respond to AFP's request for comment.

Rudy Giuliani Hospitalised: Former NYC Mayor in 'critical but stable' condition, spokesman confirms called "America's mayor".

World. (Agency)

Rudy Giuliani, the former mayor of New York City and an ex-adviser to US President Donald Trump, is in hospital in critical but stable condition, his spokesman said on Sunday. Spokesman Ted Goodman did not say what caused the 81-year-old to be admitted or how long he has been in hospital. "Mayor Giuliani is a fighter who has faced every challenge in his life with unwavering strength, and he's fighting with that same level of strength as we speak," Goodman said in a statement. He added that Giuliani "remains in critical but stable condition".

'He's fighting with strength'

Giuliani last appeared publicly on Friday night

when he hosted his online programme, America's

Mayor Live, from Palm

Beach, Florida. During the show, he coughed and said his voice was not well. "My voice is a little under the weather, so I won't be able to speak as loudly as I usually do," he said.

Giuliani became widely known for his leadership in New York after the September 11 attacks, which led to him being called "America's mayor". He later worked as Trump's personal lawyer and supported claims of fraud in the 2020 US election, which was won by Joe Biden. Courts and election reviews found no evidence of widespread fraud. Trump says hospitalisation is 'a tragedy'

Reacting to the news, Trump wrote on social media that Giuliani was "a True Warrior" and said his hospitalisation was "so sad". "Our fabulous Rudy Giuliani... has been hospitalised, and is in critical condition," Trump wrote, adding: "What a tragedy... and now, look at Rudy."

Giuliani has faced legal troubles in recent years, including a defamation case brought by two former election workers in Georgia, who won a $148 million judgment against him. He later reached a settlement allowing him to keep some assets.

He was also hospitalised in September after suffering injuries, including a fractured vertebra, in a car crash in New Hampshire.

Giuliani was elected mayor of New York in 1993 after serving as a federal prosecutor known for pursuing organised crime and financial cases.
